Funny Billecox Failed.

As a penalty for refilling a "bottled in bond" whisky flask, Theodore Brenner, a youth of Tell City, Ind., will have to pay $25 to Internal Revenue Collector Isaac Strouse at Terre Haute. Representative William E. Cox asked the treasury department to let the boy off with a lighter fine, but this was refused.

"Let the People Rule"

If ever Billecox had a chance to prove his boast to the district committee before the last primary he has it now! He must either acknowledge that he is only a grinning gargoyle of a demagogue or else come across and "LET THE PEOPLE RULE" in Bainbridge township. Let him put the postoffice question up to the voters of the township, all of whom are patrons of the Jasper Postoffice. All of you kickers against Pete Huter get busy and write Senator Shively, Senator Kern and Bille Cox and ask for an election to elect a democrat postmaster for Jasper. The Courier will print the necessary 1600 tickets and do the necessary adv. free of charge. "Let the People Rule." Pete have you got nerve enough to ask your friend Bille to give the Jasper people a chance to vote as to who they want to have the postoffice. Let the People Rule.

Baccarat, France, has the honor of producing the first glass that is unbreakable. The new process has been successfully applied to the manufacture of lamp chimneys for use in coal mines containing much fire damp. The glass makers of Baccarat have also succeeded in increasing the elasticity of the glass. This they accomplish by adding magnesia and oxide to the ordinary crystal glass.—Success Magazine.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

FUN The man about town has had a barrel of it during the last ten days. John Peter Huter's enemies sprang out of the ground faster than any old ragweeds you ever seen. And the way they cussed Billecox was a shame. Josie F. who is a soidisant politician says, "Let Cox come again" Bullfrogs! We laugh! Cassidy and Sweeney have quietly vanished. Let 'em cuss! WE LIKE PETE HUTER; of course we know that he struck town as a drunken tramp tailor, that he botched many suits of clothes. That a push sent him to the keelyure and made a worse bum out of him than he was before. That a drunken sheriff gave him an opportunity to kill a helpless prisoner, that any sheriff except a drunken bum could have brought 20 of the same kind of prisoners to Jasper without hurting any one of them. We know that he was an inefficient town Treasurer, we know that he was always after some office in every lodge which he managed to squirm into. That Barney Davis and Ben Ed marked 127 mistakes in a memorial resolution that he wrote up about the death of one of the A. O. U. W. members. That as county clerk he was never efficient and that even his hired help Ben Grewe and Bill Gosman turned him out short to the county. That as director of the Canning Co. he furnished lots of feed to the catfish of Patoka, for the benefit of H'burg fisherman, 10,000 cans of tomatoes, wasn't it, Pete. We like Pete and we hope he gets the Postoffice. Let the People Rule.

You can't draw checks against your bank account and expect the balance to remain the same unless you make deposits. Neither can you make your money in this town and spend it elsewhere and expect the town to continue to fill your purse.

The wives of some of our prominent business men such as county officers, merchants, etc., who expect to make a living from our town people, are doing their trading in Otwell, Ind., where facilities are not half as good as in this town. This is a very poor showing of boosting your home town and its business.

Holy smokes! Did you notice above how the erstwhile spineless fish worm The Jasper edition of the Tell City News jumped on to Jake Schwenk's family, John P. Huter's wife and the Milliner Mrs. Jones et al last week because they went to Otwell and laid in their winter's supply of groceries, clothing etc. Now, lookie here, my dear darling Silva, you stiek to your soft soap, and let Ben Ed do the kicking. He is good at it. Then you know, live men kick—dead ones don't.

Wasn't that an elegant piece of Soft Soap that Mickey Sweeney smeared over the Very Rev Bromley in the Jasper edition of the Tell City News. The superlative adjectives pointed the finger to Mickey and caused many members of the Trinity congregation to enjoy a good laugh. The article did no one any harm and made Rev. Bromley feel good, and he will keep a copy in his scrap book many years. It caused his one time congregation to smile and feel fine, so you see that Mickey was working so Ut in Omnibus Glorificetur Deus. Jubilate Deo.

SOCIAL INFLICTIONS.

I have seen men who neigh like a horse when you contradict them or say something they do not understand; then the overbold, who make their own invitation to your hearth; the persevering talker, who gives you his society in large, saturating doses; the pitiers of themselves—a perilous class; the frivolous Almodens, who relies on you to find him in ropes of sand to twist; the monotonous; in short, every stripe of absurdity—these are social inflections which the magistrate cannot cure or defend you from, and which must be intrusted to the restraining force of custom, and proverbs and familiar rules of behavior impressed on young people in their school days.

Thresia Knable Wants

$5,000.00

Here's Hoping She Gets It.

Washington Democrat: On behalf of Thresia Knabel a Dubois county widow, Seal & Walsh, local attorneys, have entered suit for $5,000 against John A. Rhoades, of Martin county for personal injuries with the plaintiff alleges she received when attacked by the defendant.

The complaint recited that at the time of the assault the plaintiff was employed at the home of the defendant's father as a domestic and had her two children there with her; that on the night of July 7th the defendant, John A. Rhoades, broke into the room occupied by the plaintiff and with force and arms assaulted her and beat her about the head face and neck with the butt end of a buggy whip; that he knocked her down kicked and wounded her to such an extent that her injuries are permanent; that he cursed her and told her that if she did not leave premises at once he would kill her; that because of these threats she left that night at 10 o'clock in her night clothes and ran to a neighbor's house for protection; that her injuries were of such a severe nature that she had to drive to Logansport, a distance of fourteen miles, that night for medical treatment. Because of her injuries she demands judgement for $5,000. The suit will be filed in the Martin circuit court.

As a result of the alleged assault an affidavit has been filed against Rhoades charging him with assault and battery on Mrs. Knabel with intent to kill. He has been bound over to the Martin circuit court.

Brag! Bluff! and Balderdash

The following is reprinted from the Huntingburg Independent, it having been published by them as a communication from Jasper. As a specimen of Brag and Balderdash, it is fine. It is also, most wretchedly false in some particulars. Because Billecox could not have made a more unsatisfactory recommendation if he had tried. Self brag is worse than scandal in this case, but Pete was always good at it. It is time he was taking a tumble to himself. The following is the rot.

"The dispatches in the Sunday papers are authority for the statement that Congressman W. E. Cox has recommended John P. Huter, ex circuit clerk of Dubois county, for postmaster at Jasper to succeed Dr. A. F. Guggell, the incumbent. Mr. Huter's appointment will be made soon. We congratulate Mr. Cox on his choice, for this is a case where 'Lige rewarded a true friend, for Mr. Huter worked hard for Mr. Cox, and, in fact, was the only man who went all over the county for Mr. Cox in the last campaign, and 'Lige would have been an ingrate had he not rewarded this loyalty. We always believe in helping a friend, as we cannot expect any assistance from our enemies.

Mr. Huter will make a first-class postmaster, and we join his many friends in all parts of the county in extending congratulations and best wishes for his success, and the hope that he will be able to serve longer than his predecessor. X Y Z Jasper, Ind., July 16, 1914"

No Hay So Good as Alfalfa.

There is no other hay so good as alfalfa for all kinds of live stock, and for horses and hogs alfalfa is invaluable, either as a hay, a soiling crop, or a pasture. It excels as a hog pasture, and, with hogs, makes one of the most profitable farm combinations. An alfalfa field is said to be a hog's idea of heaven.

In root growth alfalfa resembles red clover, but sends down a stronger tap root. When properly handled it produces three or four cuttings each year and remains productive for many years. Land which is adapted to red clover usually grows alfalfa when any lack of inoculation and of lime is supplied.

Alfalfa does best when sown alone. Many failures are due to sowing it with oats or barley. These take so much water from the soil that the alfalfa dies.

Alfalfa growing marks the highest development in our modern agriculture.

"Alfalfa is the richest hay food known."—J. W. Spillman.

Newspapers at best have to print much that isn't ideal, because it is mostly their job to mirror life as it is, not life as it ought to be. And in drawing the line between what is fit to print and what isn't the most conscientious judgments will differ.

This newspaper has no hard and fast rules governing its news columns. The editor reserves the right to pass judgement upon the individual cases as they come, and will exercise that right.

DOING THEIR DUTY.

Scores of Jasper Readers are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty. When they fail to do this the kidneys are weak. Backache and other kidney ills may follow.

Help the kidneys do their work Use Doan's Kidney Pills—the tested kidney remedy.

Proof of their worth in the following:

F. W. Freyberger, farmer, eight miles north of Jasper, Ind. says: "I had all the symptoms of kidney complaint and my back ached. At night sharp, shooting pains darted through my body. Doan's Kidney Pills acted promptly, and not only drove away the pains, but regulated the action of my kidneys. My experience with this medicine has convinced me that it is a very effective one."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the name that Mr. Freyberger had Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

No More Wires.

Recent Wireless Telephone Experiments in France have attained results that may have a far-reaching importance. With a transmitting station set up at Paris, long conversations are sent out and picked up at points over a hundred miles off. As explained in a recent note, the electric arc system of the officers Colin and Jeanci is used, working a 150-foot antenna. Ordinary wireless apparatus, such as even amateurs possess, will receive the spoken message. For instance, a small wireless station at Metray, 120 miles from Paris could receive long newspaper articles which were being read into the sending apparatus. More striking still was the use of a wireless telegraph motor car of usual make-up, with a 100-foot portable antenna mast which could be erected on the ground in 20 minutes. Conversation could be heard from Paris at a distance of 60 miles by a reporter of the Matin, from which journal we take our present account. Capt. Colin speaks of the great military use of the method. For instance, the general can send out orders direct by telephone to the field or to bat leships. Tuning can be varied, so as to prevent interference.

Notice of Sale of Rock Road Bonds.

A STRIKING CONTRAST.

Entering the United States Senate the House of Lords.

When a senator is elected in the United States he sends his credentials in advance. They are presented by his colleague, read from the desk and filed in the secretary's office unless some objection is raised, when they are sent to a committee on privileges and elections for examination. When a senator elect appears he steps quietly up to the clerk's desk, escorted by his colleague, takes an oath to support the constitution of the United States and is then led to a desk on the outer row, which his colleague has selected for him, where he receives the congratulations of his friends and introductions to the senators who care to make his acquaintance. He looks as wise as may be and waits for adjournment when he goes to the secretary's office, writes his autograph in a red book for the use of the cash and draws his mileage.

In the English house of lords the proceedings are very different. A newly created peer enters that historic chamber in a robe of maroon velvet trimmed with ermine, attended by two fellow peers, who as his sponsors and escorted by a black rod, as the sergeant-at-law is known, and the garter king of arms, arrayed in a gorgeous tabard. The procession marches around making low bows to the emperor throne and to the presiding officer who is the lord high chancellor from different parts of the gold chamber, to which that important person gravely responds. When a new peer reaches the throne, he kneels reverently and places upon the empty chair, where his major ought to be sitting, the patent nobility he has received from his sovereign. He is then led to a woollack, where the lord chamber administers to him the oath. His sponsors next lead him to the peer bench, where he takes his seat for a moment. Then all three kneel and bow three times at the emperor throne and three times to the presiding officer. The lord high chancellor then leaves the woollack, comes down to shake hands with a new peer and welcome him to his house. The other peers come and tender their congratulations.

THE OBJECTION TO JOHN

It Was Easily Removed When the Situation Was Explained.

The Gaylords and Nelsons have always been neighbors and intimate friends. So when John Gaylord, twenty-four, as fine a fellow as was, began to see what an altogether charming girl Molly Nelson there was naturally no objection. Indeed, as the "affair" became serious it was evident to all, including John and Molly themselves, that the parents concerned were delighted. As yet there was no formal announcement, but every one knew that it was "understood," an evening after evening John talked to Molly on the front porch, often lingering after the other Nelsons had retired.

The surprise of the two was consequently great when one evening shuffling step was heard in the hall and presently Mr. Nelson appeared in slippers and dressing gown, candle in hand. Quite evidently he had gone to bed and then got up for some purpose.

"Why, father, what is the matter?"

Molly's cheeks were burning, her father stood there hesitating and eying John closely. John, leaning against the doorpost, where he had stood for the last fifteen minutes saying good night to Molly, felt decidedly uncomfortable under Mr. Nelson's gaze.

In fact, it was embarrassing around. But John is a young man who goes straight to the point.

"Is anything wrong, Mr. Nelson?" he began. "Am I to in that you object to my being here?"

"Well, no, not exactly, John. Mr. Nelson coughed slightly, hesitating. "It's only that mother—I would like to get a little sleep."

"Father," cried Molly, quite dignant, "we couldn't have been disturbing any one! John has been talking very low."

"I don't doubt that, my dear Mr. Nelson was beginning to en the situation. "It's not that, I have I any objection to John's talking to you. In fact, I haven't objection in the world to John's to his conduct, except—"

Mr. Nelson paused to suspiciously having prolonged the matter unnecessarily at this point.

"—except in so far as, Mrs. Nelson and I do not, especially, dear John, to the habit you seem have formed this evening of leaning against the bed post. Our bedroom is next to the kitchen, and this continuous bell ringing is conducive to repose."
